

I just want to say that I have the right to listen to what i choose to listen to. I pay the fee to have satelite radio and I have used it in emergencies several times. I live in Oklahoma, right in the middle of tornado alley. I rely on satelite to keep me and my family safe when we are out away from a television. I don't understand how the NAB can take a device such as the weather or traffic channel off of the air due to a money issue. Better yet, they ought to just put in their own weather satelite radio and be competitive rather than taking it all away. I do believe that if it is one of their children or loved ones that needed this station such as we do here in tornado alley, then they might think twice before ever saying anything about shutting down these stations. I don't feel that haveing satelite is harming anyone. There is no difference from having satelite TV, or a cable TV, or ham radios that interfere with the police departments, so why take off what is a necessity to some and an enjoyment to others? Money isn't everything when it comes to the love ones that rely on such stations.
